

WAVES OF HOPE:

THE INSPIRATIONAL STORY OF AGNES NEGRA

Sunday, July 19th, 2pm to 4 pm

InfoAge Science and History Museums

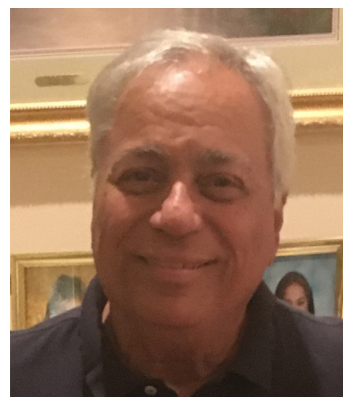

2201 Marconi Road, Wall, NJ 07719

Admission:

$15 = Ages 13 & up, $10 = Ages 5 to 12

$0 = Ages 0 to 4, $8 = Military, $12 = seniors

Includes admission to our 17 museums!

Author Ronald Negra

Join us at the InfoAge

as Ron Negra, author of "Waves of Hope" tells the remarkable story of an inspiring young woman named Agnes Joan Negra and heroic acts of kindness she performed during World War II, from her home in New Jersey. Ron will be joined by his wife, Valerie.

Back in 1944, Ron's mother, Anger, sat at her shortwave radio night after night, listening to broadcasts listing the names of American soldiers captured and held as POWs in Europe. This was personal for Agnes as her husband, August, was missing in action.

That is the remarkable story of "Waves of Hope." Ron's book contains copies of letters Agnes received from families she had written to. The result is a moving story of kindness and hope.

Copies of Ron's book will be available for purchase and signing.

